

EHR Integration Services, National Physician Services and Byte Sized Solutions Announce Strategic Partnership

Perfect Practice Alliance Created to Address a Growing Market Need for Cost-Effective Technology Services

Skaneateles, NY, February 19, 2015 — EHR Integration Services, National Physician Services and Byte Sized Solutions have signed a strategic partnership agreement designed to leverage complementary core competencies, skilled consulting resources and state-of-the-art technology solutions for the physician office market. The mission of the partnership is to help practices efficiently and cost-effectively achieve their desired clinical, technology and business goals.

These three high-performing healthcare information technology companies are the charter members of a partnership network called the Perfect Practice Alliance (PPA). According to Craig Luce, President of EHR Integration Services, “The PPA has a singular focus and unified purpose. We are all dedicated to the advancement of healthcare information technology and performance improvement for physician practices.”

The PPA accomplishes its goals through a proven consulting process and service delivery philosophy that provides the perfect healthcare information technology solution for each of its valued clients every time. The charter members set the strategic direction for the Alliance and deliver Perfect Practice consulting assessments designed to meet client needs. For some practices, that may mean helping them stay independent, competitive and profitable. For other practices with a progressive growth strategy, it may mean helping them manage consistent, profitable growth without impacting quality performance.

“The growth of healthcare technology continues to provide exciting opportunities for improvement while at the same time challenging healthcare organizations to maintain complex technology systems in a rapidly evolving healthcare technology environment,” explained Bryan Graven, CEO of National Physician Services. “The Perfect Practice Alliance was created to provide an enhanced and integrated suite of healthcare technology solutions to help modern healthcare organizations focus on optimizing the delivery of patient care while we manage the complex technology needs in this transformative time.”

With an emphasis on workflow improvements and bottom-line results, the Perfect Practice Alliance offers a wide range of opportunities for physician groups to become the Perfect Practice. The founding partners provide the vast majority of the healthcare technology services required by today’s modern electronic healthcare practice. To enhance the PPA, relationships have been established with a select group of best-of-breed application providers, service vendors and clients with complementary resources and valuable technologies. All of these businesses work together under the direction of the PPA to help clients achieve their practice improvement goals.

About EHR Integration Services

Founded in 2006 by President Craig Luce, EHR Integration Services (EHRis) consists of a team of skilled specialists who leverage their knowledge and experience in Healthcare IT to transform complex data integration issues into clinical and operational workflow improvements required to manage today’s electronic medical practice. Headquartered in Skaneateles, New York, EHRis’ mission is to improve care delivery and bottom line results through “Perfect Practice,” the company’s proven consulting process and service philosophy that provides the perfect approach to data integration solutions. EHRis’ offerings include consulting, EHR extraction-conversion services, interface development and training and productivity applications. The company works closely with a few select industry leading EHR/PM vendors and is an Allscripts Certified Service Partner and GE Healthcare Professional Services Partner. For more information about the company, visit www.ehr-integration.com.

About National Physician Services

Founded over ten years ago by progressive and successful practices of independent physicians, National Physician Services (NPS) is a national healthcare information technology services company headquartered in Hartford, CT. The company delivers a comprehensive group of state-of-the-art enterprise technology services across the spectrum of clinical and business information systems with an expertise in Electronic Medical Records, Practice Management and many other applications necessary for physicians to optimize their workflows. The culture at NPS is practice-centered; the NPS business strategy delivers proven enterprise technology solutions at or below market cost through economies of scale, alliances and strategic partnerships. NPS is looking to transform the medical community through technology solutions. For more information, visit www.nationalphysicianservices.com.

About Byte Sized Solutions

Founded in 2006 by Steve Buttitta, Byte Sized Solutions is a technology company focused on improving the efficiency of healthcare delivery through the use of innovative, high-performance data integration utilities and custom applications. With extensive knowledge and expertise in creative problem-solving applied to health information technology, Byte Sized Solutions consultants can manage any data integration or application optimization problem quickly and cost-effectively the first time. The company maintains a strategic focus in the following healthcare IT categories: systems integration and custom interfaces, EHR extractions and conversions, workflow process automation, EHR application add-on and business intelligence reporting and analysis. For more information, visit www.bytesizedsolutions.com.

For More Information Contact:

Jay Mangicaro

jay.mangicaro@ehr-integration.com

(315) 382.5984

###